

Vatican critic transferred

letters@newsday.com

Date: Friday, January 27, 2012, 6:44 PM

Dear Editor:

It is truly ironic that the Church teaches that Christ is the Light of the World; yet when that same light illuminates corruption and nepotism in the Vatican Curia, the whistle-blower is 're-assigned.'

Archbishop Vigano, using his God-given talents, reportedly made sweeping reforms to eliminate wasteful spending. He was rightfully proud of his accomplishments. He apparently begged to be allowed to finish his work. This was not meant to be; so we faithful Catholics are left with yet again an example of Vatican officials not being responsive to their own gospel message.

As a member of the Catholic reform group, Voice of the Faithful, we are committed to seeking ways to end the silence and obfuscation of Rome that has hindered the church from accomplishing its true mission...to bring the Light of Christ to all the world, even unto the Vatican itself!

Edward J. Thompson, Sr.